Ethical Policy

Authors need to be truthful in presenting their research outcome and conclusion. Misconduct in research is detrimental to knowledge. It can also misguide other researchers.

Research procedure

Falsification, fabrication, selective reporting, and theft of data is not ethical. Every step of research procedure and outcome require to be preserved by the author(s) to allow future review if necessary. In the post-publication period, data should be retained for at least a year and made available upon request.

Authorship

The persons contributing significantly in a paper should be cited as authors. Other people who contributed to the work need to be acknowledged. Current institutional affiliations of the authors are mandatory.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism – including self-plagiarism – in any form is not acceptable. Submission of same research outcome to more than one journal simultaneously is unethical. The work of others used in the paper should be properly acknowledged and cited.

Revisions

All authors require to cooperate with the editors to provide prompt revisions in submitted papers. The decision of the Reviewers and Editors in acceptance / rejection of a paper is binding.

Handling research misconduct

The main responsibility for dealing with research misconduct lies with the employer(s) of the researcher(s). If some misconduct is brought to the Editor's attention, we will seek advice from the Editorial Board and/or referees.
